

JACOB

18 Years Old

Diagnosed with T-Cell Non-Hodgkins
Lymphoma Freshman Year

I had to halt high-school for 2 years and spent long months in the hospital. I often wished I could close my eyes and sleep till it was over. I liked to build Legos to keep my brain thinking and was pleasantly surprised when a donor gave me a LEGO Deathstar, which is still in my room today.

Things may have been tough for me, but I knew I could do it because of all the support I got. No one ever let me see their worry, only their support.

So be sure you run with all your heart and let the fighters see your support!

BOARD SPONSORED BY

Think about all the smiling faces you have helped while you run or walk!

