

ABIGAIL

8 Years Old

Diagnosed with a Wilms Tumor
November 3rd, 2014

Abigail was diagnosed with a rare cancer that attaches to the kidney called Wilms Tumor. It was stage 4 unfavorable histology, but she had the best-case scenario as it hadn't spread into tissues or organs. Abigail underwent surgery to remove the grapefruit sized tumor and a chemo port was put in her chest. 6 months of chemotherapy took a huge toll on her body but not her mind and spirit. Abigail finished treatment in July of 2015. She is still clear and hit her 5-year cancer free in March 2019!

Abigail has an indomitable spirit and loves to joke, draw, dance, tell stories, read and play with her family. She has a 4-year-old little sister named Aria who Abigail absolutely adores and together are each other's favorite play mates.

As with all parents, we are proud of our daughter and continue to be amazed by her tenacity and giving nature.

We are so proud of our little Abigail and the obstacles she has overcome in the first 8 years of her life. We are excited to share her with the world and know she will make an incredible impact in everyone's lives that she meets!
